Repeal and

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Central Administrative Tribunal, with five Benches, was established on the 1st November, 1985 in pursuance of the provisions of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985. Prior to its establishment, writ petitions were filed in various High Courts as well as in the Supreme Court challenging the constitutional validity of article 323A of the Constitution and the provisions of the Administrative Tribunals Act. The main contention in the writ petitions was that the writ jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under article 32 of the Constitution as well as in the High Courts under article 226 of the Constitution cannot be taken away even by an amendment of the Constitution. Although the Supreme Court, by an interim order, stayed the transfer of writ petitions filed in the Supreme Court under article 32 of the Constitution to the Central Administrative Tribunal, it did not stay the transfer of writ petitions under article 226 subject to the condition that the Government would make certain amendments in the Act. One of the amendments suggested by the Court was that each case in the Tribunal must be heard by a Bench consisting of one Judicial Member and one non-Judicial Member and the appointment of Judicial Members should be done in consultation with the Chief Justice of India. An undertaking was given in the Supreme Court that a Bill to make suitable amendments in the Act would be brought before Parliament as early as possible. The Central Administrative Tribunal had also started functioning in Benches in accordance with the above directions of the Supreme Court. As the writ petitions referred to above were coming up for hearing some time in January, 1986, the President promulgated Ordinance, 1986 on the the Administrative Tribunals (Amendment) 22nd January, 1986 so as to give effect to the assurance given in the Supreme Court and to make some other amendments found necessary in the administration of the Act.

- 2. The Ordinance provided, among other things, for the following matters, namely:—
 - (a) The concept of Judicial Member and Administrative Member was introduced in the Act, and a Bench of the Administrative Tribunal would consist of one Judicial Member and one Administrative Member instead of three member-Benches to be presided over either by the Chairman or by the Vice-Chairman. It was also provided that the appointment of a Judicial Member would be made after consultation with the Chief Justice of India. Suitable provisions had also been included in the Ordinance to regularise the existing appointment of Members as Judicial Members and Administrative Members.
 - (b) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in service matters under article 32 of the Constitution was preserved. The principal Act intended to confer this jurisdiction also on the Tribunal.

- (c) A provision was included to designate, with the concurrence of any State Government, all or any of the Members of the Bench or Benches of the State Administrative Tribunal established for that State as members of the Bench or Benches of the Central Administrative Tribunal in respect of that State, and to designate, on receipt of a request from any State Government, all or any of the members of the Bench or Benches of the Central Administrative Tribunal functioning in that State as members of the Bench or Benches of the State Administrative Tribunal for that State.
- (d) The jurisdiction of the Tribunal was also extended to persons who are governed by the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 without affecting the rights of such persons under that Act.
- 3. Subsequent to the promulgation of the Ordinance, a few doubts were expressed in respect of some of the provisions of the Act and the Ordinance. It is, therefore, proposed to include in the Bill a few clarificatory amendments, to make certain provisions included in the Ordinance retrospective from the date of establishment of the Central Administrative Tribunal, and to validate certain actions taken by the said Tribunal. The amendments included in the Bill have been explained in the memorandum attached to the Bill.
- 4. The Bill seeks to replace the aforesaid Ordinance and to include therein the aforesaid amendments.

NEW DELHI; The 6th March, 1986. P. CHIDAMBARAM.

Memorandum explaining the modifications contained in the Bill to replace the Administrative Tribunals (Amendment) Ordinance, 1986.

The Administrative Tribunals (Amendment) Bill, 1986, which seeks to repeal and replace the Administrative Tribunals (Amendment) Ordinance, 1986, proposes to make the following modifications, apart from modifications of a consequential or drafting nature, in the provisions contained in the said Ordinance:—

- (i) Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to indicate in the long title that the Act was enacted in pursuance of article 323A of the Constitution.
- (ii) As the Benches of the Central Administrative Tribunal had already started functioning from the date of their establishment by the constitution of Benches consisting of one Judicial Member and one Administrative Member in accordance with the directions of the Supreme Court, the amendments, included in the Ordinance for this purpose, are proposed to be given retrospective effect from the date of establishment of the Tribunal, i.e., 1st November, 1985. The Benches of the said Tribunal had also exercised jurisdiction in respect of persons governed by the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, with effect from 1st November, 1985. Hence the amendment also is proposed to be given effect to from that date and a provision has been included to validate the actions taken by the Tribunal.
- (iii) The establishment of certain Benches in a few places has also been challenged in a few writ petitions. To overcome the objections raised in these petitions, the provision regarding establishment of Benches has been redrafted to indicate the places where the Benches will be established and to make the provision effective retrospectively from 1st November, 1985 [vide clause 6 (g) of the Bill].
- (iv) A doubt has been expressed as to whether the Central Administrative Tribunal will have jurisdiction in respect of the services in connection with the affairs of a Union territory. Although the expression "in connection with the affairs of the Union" would include services under the administration of a Union territory, it is proposed to make this clear by an amendment in section 14(1) of the Act [vide clause 11(d) of the Bill].
- (v) It is also proposed to include a clarificatory amendment that the order of a Tribunal finally disposing of an application or appeal will not be called in question in any court, except by way of special leave petition in the Supreme Court [vide clause 18 of the Bill].
- (vi) Appeals against many of the decrees, orders or judgments of subordinate courts in respect of service matters passed before the establishment of the Central Administrative Tribunal had not been preferred after such establishment either to the High Courts or to the Central Administrative Tribunal in view of the doubts as to whether the appeal should be filed in the Tribunal or in the High Courts. It is proposed to provide that appeals against such decrees, orders or judgments may be preferred to the Central Administrative Tribunal within a period of ninety days from the date on which the amending Bill received the assent of the President, or from the date when the copies of the judgments were received whichever is later and, in respect of cases before any other Tribunal, within ninety days from the date of establishment of such Tribunals or from the date when the copies of the judgments were received, whichever is later. This amendment would also make it clear that the Administrative Tribunal will have the jurisdiction to entertain appeals from subordinate courts in respect of service matters [vide clause 21 of the Bill].
